DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The phrase "an aqueous solution of the platinum;" is not clear since it appears to read in an aqueous solution of the metal, which is not known in the art. It is known in the art aqueous solutions of metal compounds that are soluble in water not the metal itself. Further it appears that the word "compound", that followed the above mention phrase, was deleted in the preliminary amendment filed September 25, 2006 making the claim unclear.
3. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The phrase "heating to complete solution" at step b) is unclear as to the meaning. How you complete a solution by heating said solution? Please clarify.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1, 3, 5 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,287,593. The '593 patent discloses lipid complexes and liposomes of highly insoluble platinum complexes, pharmaceutical compositions containing said complexes and method for treating a cancer tumor in a patient. The '593 particularly discloses diaminocyclohexane platinum-dicarboxylates as the platinum complexes. Note that said compound meets the requirements of claim 1 by having an anionic ligand (the dicarboxylate ligand) and a ligand containing amino groups (the diaminocyclohexane ligand). Further, the '593 patent discloses that the lipid complex have a particle size distribution ranging from 10 to 500 nm, which also meets the nanoparticle limitation. As for claim 3, a product-by-process claim, it's the Examiner's position that it's the product and not the process what is claimed thus the '593 patent anticipates said claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.

Art Unit: 1621

3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

8. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

9. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,287,593 in view of either U.S. Patent No. 6,596,889 or U.S. Patent No. 6,011,166. The '593 patent discloses lipid complexes and liposomes of highly insoluble platinum complexes, pharmaceutical compositions containing said complexes and method for treating a cancer tumor in a patient. The '593 particularly discloses diaminocyclohexane platinum-dicarboxylates as the platinum complexes. Further, the '593 patent discloses that the lipid complex have a particle size distribution ranging from 10 to 500 nm. The '593 patent disclosure differ from the instant claim 2 in the particular platinum complex used. The platinum complexes having the formulas I-V in claim 2 are dinuclear or trinuclear platinum complexes whereas the '593 patent discloses mononuclear platinum complexes. The '889 patent discloses nitrates of bis-platinum complexes with polyamine ligands also having antitumor activity and the '166 patent discloses trinuclear cationic platinum complexes having antitumor activity. One skilled in the art would be motivated to substitute the mononuclear platinum complex in the lipid composition of the '593 patent with either the dinuclear platinum complex of the '889 patent or the trinuclear platinum complex of the '166 patent since all of them are active against tumor cancers with the expectation that said lipid composition would also have similar activity as the '593 lipid composition.
